presents

Media and Emergency Response

A panel discussion about measures taken since Earthquake Sunday to strengthen media operations and improve emergency communications

Tuesday, February 27

11:30 A.M. – 1:30 P.M.

Ala Moana Hotel – Carnation Room

$20 (includes lunch)

Panelists include

- Mark Platte, editor of The Honolulu Advertiser
- Chuck Cotton, vice president and general manager of 7 Honolulu radio stations owned by Clear Channel
- Michael Titterton, general manager of Hawaii Public Radio;
- Marsha Weinert, state liaison to the visitor industry and co-chair of the Comprehensive Communications Review Committee that proposed communications improvements after the October 15th earthquakes
- Doug Carlson, communications consultant and writer of the Citizens Helping Officials Respond to Emergencies (CHORE) web log.
- State Civil Defense has been invited to send a representative
- Chris Conybeare, attorney and UHWO media specialist, will moderate.

Join us for the first of several events this year as the Media Council resumes a regular schedule of communications-oriented programs.

The Honolulu Community Media Council was established in 1970 and is the oldest of 3 media councils in the U.S. Members include individuals from the community and media who seek to improve public access to information, strengthen First Amendment rights, broaden public understanding of the role of the media, and promote accurate and fair journalism in Hawaii.

You can RSVP by February 23 in these ways:

- Return this email with a "yes" or "no" and your contact info.
- Mail your $20 check to our address below.
- Call Veronica at 596-2121.
